

One-day Online Training
NGO Governance and Management Challenges
May 28, 2021

Course Concept:

Governance is the process of decision-making and also the process by which decisions are implemented. It's not only about making "correct" decisions, but about the best possible process for making those decisions. Good Governance is the practice where this governance is done without any bias or in other words without corruption, as very often the term "good governance" is connected to public affairs and the way public resources are managed.

NGO Governance is not the same as NGO management, but is complementary to it. Management exercises its authority on behalf of and as directed by the board, and not on its own right. Setting boundaries between governance and management is therefore an important principle.

This one-day online programme is designed to give the participants a clear understanding of the various components and implications of good governance.

Programme Overview:

- Governance & Good Governance V/s NGO Management
- Factors Influencing Good Governance in NGOs
- Components of Good Governance
- Good Governance and NGO Performance
- Governance and Accountability
- Challenges in Governance and Management of NGOs

Who will benefit from this course?

Board Members of NGOs, Directors and Senior Executives of the Organisations and others involved in NGO Management and Administration.

The Course Leader:

KKID has been conducting programmes of this type as a requirement for NGOs and Dr. Tom Jose with his many years of experience in the development sector with personal experience of running and managing the affairs of organisations as well as guiding hundreds of NGOs in this process through training, OD interventions and organisational audit will resource this online programme.
